

THE CLIMAX.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29, 1887.

Joe Pig and Harvey Douglas, are tusslers on a barge committee.

Dr. Wm. Jennings is officing with Dr. John M. Foster on Main street.

There will be a public sale of 27 town lots at Ford about the middle of July.

Dr. J. T. Akers is organizing a class in French and German for the summer.

The Odd Fellows of Louisville will give a concert and picnic on July 4th at Arcle Spring.

Mayor Mitchell tells us that the telephone to Beattyville will certainly be built this summer.

Mr. W. E. Luxon has sold to Mr. Stephen D. Parrish an acre lot and house on Irvine street for $1,000.

The contract to bore for natural gas has been let to Wiser Brothers, Cleveland, Ohio, and work will begin within the next week.

Grand opening ball at the Arlington Hotel, Blue Lick Springs, July 4th. Capt. Dan Turney says Richmond is especially invited.

The finest home-raised peaches we have seen were sent to this office on Monday by Mrs. B. J. Dudley Miller. She has tomatoes large as goose eggs.

Charley Mackey rode to the Berea commencement on a bicycle—14 miles, and made the distance in two hours. He is a colored youth of thirteen summers.

Mrs. M. Barlow has the first copy of the Herald that came off the press, February 5th, 1879. It was presented to her by Judge E. W. Turner, who was one of the editors.

Mr. Alexander Tribble's health is so much improved that he expects to be in town next Court-day. He promises his cattle finer and fatter than he has ever before had.

Hon. Geo. V. Triplett, a graduate of Central University, and editor of the Owensboro Messenger, writes to a friend here that he has the finest boy in America at his house.

Gen. Casius M. Clay, representing the class of '32, delivered an oration at Yale College commencement yesterday. See first page of this issue. The oration embodies food for thought.

June is gone, and did not produce any more peaches than did the month of May. Peaches in Madison county grow fewer in number every year. The circus has probably superseded the p. n.

Mr. Green H. Turley has returned from Hot Springs, Ark., much improved in health. The physicians told him he could be entirely relieved of rheumatism if he would return next year.

Mr. Thomas Owens, of the law firm of Ross & Owens, Carlisle, was Deputy Circuit Clerk of Madison county thirty years ago, under Mr. Blackford. He has not been to Richmond in a number of years.

The Democrats of Madison County ought to roll up a rousing majority in August. There's a million in the fight—Mrs. Amanda T. Million having been nominated for Superintendent of Common Schools—Mayville Bulletin.

S. S. Pentz, first a lawyer, then a Methodist Minister, then an Episcopal Minister and who once had charge of the Episcopal church here for a short time, has thrown aside the ministerial robe and gone to practicing law at Washington City.

The Kentucky Central will run an excursion to Dayton, Ohio, July 19th, at $5 for the round trip. Excursions from Cincinnati, Xenia, Springfield and Cincinnati will be run the same day, and a matched game of base-ball, Kentucky vs Ohio, will be played.

Mr. C. L. Searcy, of Waco, received second money on a prize essay published in the "Shoe Dealer" a trade Journal printed in Louisville. A number of essays were entered in the contest. The subject was, "How to Run a Country Store."

Mr. J. B. Eason, manager of the planing mill for C. Stafford's assignee, is doubtless one of the finest builders to be found in Kentucky. The Episcopal church, this place, and Lincoln Hall at Berea, which he has just finished, are ample evidences of the fact.

Col. T. S. Moberly went to Cincinnati, last week, and met the business men of the city together with a number of live-stock men, relative to inaugurating a Fat Stock Show in Cincinnati, this fall, but there was such a depression in finances that action was postponed.

Bales & Maubin have within the past few days shipped twenty tons of lamb from Red House and Silver Creek. Bought at 5 cents a pound. From Richmond, two cars cattle. J. F. Wagers, from Richmond, four cars sheep and one of cattle. Clark & Million two cars hogs.

You can go on a four days' trip in search of a suitable place in which to celebrate the "Glorious Fourth" this year, as the General Passenger Agent of the Chesapeake and Ohio route has issued instructions to all agents to sell excursion tickets to all C. & O. stations July 2d, 3d and 4th, good to return until July 5th, at one fare for the round trip.

Save Trouble
By paying attention to the notice published elsewhere in this issue regarding examination of teachers by the Board of Examiners.

The Fourth of July.
The Post-office will be closed next Monday, July 4th, from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. The four banks will be closed; also the Revenue office. County Court will transact business of minor importance, and continue the balance of the business over until Tuesday.

Old Point Comfort.
The annual excursion to Old Point Comfort leaves Lexington Ky., July 11th, at 11:45 a. m. Round trip tickets from Lexington to all points on the C. & O. Railroad, $12; from all points on the K. C. Railroad $13. Tickets good for 15 days. Supper privileges can be secured at hotels. Tickets for sale at all stations on the C. & O. and K. C. Railroads. For further particulars apply to J. E. Wright, or James B. Jones, 34 E. Main st., Lexington, Ky.

Estill Springs.

Gen. John S. Williams and Mr. A. W. Hamilton, of Montgomery county; Hon. Thos. G. Stuart and Col. J. H. Holloway, of Winchester; Rev. Morris Evans and wife, of Lancaster, and a number of others are sojourning at that delightful old resort, Estill Springs.

Dr. Willits's Lecture.
We are informed by telegram from Claude Bickley, manager of the Lexington Chautauqua Assembly, that the date of Dr. Willits's lecture on Mental Dyspepsia has been changed from July 6th, to July 1st, also that reduced rates may be had on all railroads during the meetings at Lexington.

Souvenirs.
During the battle in 1862, two or three cannon balls from the Confederate batteries struck the side of Mr. Zeno church, near Kingston, this county. The balls buried into the brick wall but did not go through. They were picked out and carried away years ago. Recently, while repairing the church, the holes were filled up. At first we thought that should not have been done, but upon reflection it is in accordance with our belief that the Rebel flags at Washington ought to be buried, and thus aid in erasing the "bloody clasm."

Another Honor to Kentucky.

Under this head, Lexington Observer has the following: "Joseph Reeling Kastle, of this city, who won the scholarship at Johns Hopkins University last year in chemistry, has this year taken the fellowship in the same study, which carries with it an award of five hundred dollars in gold with fees paid for next year. This is the highest honor attained this year by any young Kentuckian studying at home or abroad, and adds to Mr. Kastle's already abundant laurels. Mr. Kastle won the Governor's medal in the State College, this city, three years ago."

Madison County Leads the World.

Gen. C. M. Clay sold last week to Mr. C. M. St. Clairsville, Ohio, 32 head of pure blooded Southdown sheep to go to South America. Mr. St. Clairsville has been over Europe and this country, has seen all the leading herds, and selected Gen. Clay's as the best he has found. The price paid is not stated. He will ship them to Brazil, probably by way of England, at a cost of $3,200 for shipping expenses alone, the price paid for them not included. Madison county is noted for its fine horses and cattle, and this looks as if the sheep were equally as good. Gen. Clay has made a study of the sheep business for half a century.

A Landmark Event.

Last week THE CLIMAX recently announced that "the oldest residence in Foxtown turned on Monday." When the house was built, or by whom, is not known. It was an old house when General Clay was a boy, and has been occupied by various persons. It stood on the right hand side of the turnpike, on Main street, going toward Lexington, next to the corner store, and was for many years used as a tavern. It was a popular place in the long ago when musters were in vogue. Dinners were prepared for the public on all public occasions. It was at this house that the famous Turner-Clay trouble occurred. The old house had troubled numerous exciting events. It was the rendezvous for the soldiers of the war of 1812. At last it ended in smoke.

"Poor White Trash."

If there is any one class of human beings for whom the average colored citizen has a greater contempt than for any other, it is that which is designated as "poor white trash." Not long since, Melissa Johnson, a tough specimen of a white female who was once on the rock-pile in Richmond, charged with carrying concealed a deadly pistol, and appearing otherwise deadly, went to the house of a colored family near here. She was treated gently the first visit, but advised to stay away. She however returned, and was rather unceremoniously "fried." She appeared a third time, whereupon a "common" ordinary every day thrashing was given her by the inmates of the house. Melissa seemed to then become offended, and left the place. Both parties acted sensibly on the occasion of the last visit.

A Madison County Teacher.

Miss Josie Pettus, now of Lexington, has become a very successful teacher in West. Her many friends here will take great pleasure in reading the following from the Marshall (Mo.) Democrat: "Oreaville Public School is in Saline county, Mo., situated about nine miles East of Marshall, the county seat. The school has been taught for the past nine months by Miss Josephine Pettus, of Lexington, Ky., a handsome 'luncheonette' of the 'shoulder' (Judge) and twenty-two summers. She is young in the business of teaching, but worthy and well qualified, evincing very rare qualities of mind and deportment, for her occupation. Miss Josie came to this school one month since, an entire stranger to patrons and children, and not only the organization of the common school system do we remember to have witnessed such evidence of confidence and sincere affection by the pupils in and for their teacher as we witnessed at their closing exercises. The disposition, deportment and general appearance of the children of the community furnishes a correct and reliable index to character, style and general health of the inhabitants. We are indebted for Miss Josie Pettus to a Union and successful future. She is not only an honor and likely to add new lustre to the name of her great-great uncle, the late Wm. G. Pettus, Secretary of State under Gov. Boggs, but may now with propriety be enrolled in the history of the times as a creditable representative of the Athens of her native State."

Honor Roll.

Prof. J. B. Harris on last Friday closed an interesting school at Runyon Grove. The following are those who are entitled to honor in the various classes:

Spelling—1st honor, Nathan Noland; 2nd honor, Lella Harris; Reading—1st honor, Lella Harris; 2nd honor, Nathan Noland; Dictionary—1st honor, Anna Gentry; 2nd honor, Olive Gentry; Grammar (Primary)—1st honor, Parsh; 2nd honor, Mary Parsh; Grammar (Practical)—1st honor, Olive Gentry; 2nd honor, Ida Hilde; Arithmetic—1st honor, Evans Dozier; 2nd honor, Amanda Gentry; Geography (Primary)—1st honor, Joel Gentry; 2nd honor, David Parsh; Geography (Intermediate)—1st honor, Anna Gentry; 2nd honor, Lella Harris; Arithmetic (Practical)—1st honor, Elmer Parsh; 2nd honor, Leander Hilde; Arithmetic (Progressive Higher); 1st honor, Evans Dozier; 2nd honor, Robert Davis; Punctuality—1st honor, Nathan Noland; 2nd honor, John Harris.

Frightened to Death.

On Monday afternoon Mrs. Nannie Gentry, widow of the late Nathan Gentry, accompanied by her son, N. B. Gentry, recently a groceryman in this place, went to the house of Mrs. Catherine Cuzick, widow of the late Wm. Cuzick, who built the amphitheatre at the fair grounds. Gentry's wife, who was a granddaughter of Mrs. Cuzick, had left home on Saturday and since been at her grandmother's. It is said that Gentry and his wife had not been living happily, hence her absence from home. Gentry became enraged at his mother and made an assault upon her. His wife undertook to separate them, and at that moment William Faulconer, a brother to Gentry's wife appeared and thinking Gentry was assaulting his (Faulconer's) sister, struck Gentry with a stick on the head making the blood flow freely. Great excitement prevailed in the house, and Dr. Payne was sent for to attend Gentry. While dressing the wound, Mrs. Cuzick was discovered suffering in a back room. The doctor took her on the back porch and seated her in a chair where she died suddenly. Gentry and his mother left town. Yesterday County Attorney Sullivan ordered an inquest, and one was held by "Squire Armer. The verdict was that deceased came to her death from heart disease superinduced by the trouble above mentioned. Gentry will probably be arrested for assault and battery or breach of the peace. He was indicted last March for assaulting his mother with intent to rob her. Mrs. Cuzick was 77 years old. The burial occurred in the cemetery yesterday afternoon.

Berea College Commencement—A Great Day.

Those who have never been present at a commencement of Berea College have no conception of its magnitude. Everybody has heard of Berea College, and many people have visited the bright little town, fourteen miles South of Richmond on the Kentucky Central Railroad. There are numbers who have visited the school, and admired Howard Hall, the spacious Tabernacle, the massive Ladies' Dormitory, and the splendid Lincoln Hall. Yet there are those who have never attended a Berea commencement. We were among the dereket number until last Wednesday, June 22nd, which was the 21st, annual commencement. We can assure those who have steadfastly remained away that the loss is theirs. In the forenoon of last Wednesday, three special trains left Richmond for Berea, carrying more than six hundred people. Upon reaching the grounds the exercises had already begun, and everybody and his sister and his cousin and his aunt were present. Two thousand five hundred people were seated in the mammoth Tabernacle, and probably the thousands scattered about the grounds on the outside. Not fewer than two thousand horses were hitched on the wooded campus. There were horses with saddles; there were horses that had brought one person, and horses that had brought two persons, and three persons, and even four persons. There were horses in harness; and they had drawn carriages, and sulkies, and spring wagons; and there were horses with gear that had drawn heavy road wagons, and great farm wagons, and carriages. And those vehicles had hauled any number of persons from two to seventeen—we counted seventeen persons getting out of one farm wagon.

The people were from every where—from the cities, and towns, and villages, and they were from the mountains and the "hennville" deer-trick, and from the Bluegrass Region. There were rich people and poor people, great people and small, white people and black, old people and young, educated people and ignorant ones, Democrats, Republicans, Protestants, Catholics, and Methodists, and Baptists, and Presbyterians, and Unitarians, and all the rest of them. There were Christians and sinners, both male and female; Jews and Pagans; and there were ladies, a distinctive feature of Berea commencement. The costumes formed a panorama of styles for a quarter of a century back. There were the latest from imported fashion plates. There were silk hats, felt, wools, and straw—high, low, broad and narrow; and there was a con-skin cap. The sun-bonnet was conspicuous; and the plain, old-time dress without tucks, folds, loops or other extras, it was there. Jeans clothes—mixed, brown, blue and gray—were represented. Linen, cassimeres and broadcloths were abundant. As to shoes, there were brogans, calfs, kids, moroccos, and patents. Boots and refreshment stands were about the campus, and private basket dinners were numerous. On the right was a solid array of colored people; on the left were whites, and in the centre they were smartly mixed. On the rostrum the seats were filled with whites, but back of it were the students who took part in the exercises, and they were black and white, male and female. In fact the catalogue exhibits 481 students of whom 251 are colored, 190 white; 220 males, 265 females. Kentucky far-fetched, 181, and eighteen other states 50. There were two late graduates—Miss M. A. Lamson, a white lady from Ambly, Illinois, and W. C. Taylor, a colored man from Lexington. There were nine orations by male students, and six essays by females. The orations and essays were carefully prepared, and reflected thought and research. Nearly every oration and essay contained a thrust at the saloon. One orator, Noble Hill, of California, declared himself a Socialist; but claimed that the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States are socialist instruments. Miss Lamson inveighed against socialism. President Fairchild presided, but the famous John G. Fee, the founder and preserver of the school, was on the rostrum, and seemed never happier than during the exercises. After dinner Rev. R. G. Hutchings, of Oberlin, Ohio, delivered a polished address to the vast audience, and thus this remarkable commencement closed. At dinner we enjoyed the hospitality of Prof. W. E. C. Wright and family, in company with Rev. Mr. Heflingham, and wife, of Oberlin, Rev. A. A. Myers and wife, of Williamsburg, Miss Wright and Miss Hoxley, nieces of Prof. Wright; and more delightful people would be difficult to find. Berea is not a school after our own heart, but it is one of the best schools in the South.

In Colorado, she spent some time on the ranch of her brother, Mr. John Dean, and frequently was alone at the house which was four miles from the nearest neighbor. Her husband is manager of a tobacco house in Lexington.

A correspondent of the Richmond, Va., Dispatch, writing from Lexington, Va., concerning the commencement of Washington and Lee College said: "The class collection was delivered by Mr. E. S. McCord, of Kentucky, and was an address of more than passing merit. It was well composed and very gracefully delivered. After Mr. McCord had concluded his speech Dr. Talmage, with Professor White, came down the aisle and took seats prepared for them on the rostrum. General Lee then introduced Dr. Talmage, who was welcomed with long and continued applause. Dr. Talmage's splendid address was listened to with unflinching attention during the two hours occupied in its delivery."
